THE VOYAGE OF LIFE.

BY M. ST. LEON LOUD. Thou are flowing on, bright river, In gladness to the sea; And the Summer sun-beams quiver

On the waters joyously; The graceful willows bending With their shadows o'er thee thrown, In marmars sweet are blending Their voices with thine own Oh, brightly are they flowing,

Green, snany banks between; And many a wild flower glowing, Is mirror'd in thy sheen; And barks are garly gliding Upon thy peaceful breast. Which skillful hands are guiding To the haven of thy rest.

But e'er thou meet'st the ocean There are rocks and quick sands deep, And winds in wild commotion. Will o'er thy bosom sweep; And the backs their sails unfurling To the gentle zephyr's play, Lost in thy waters whirling, Thou will bear as wrecks away.

Like thee, the heart beginneth Life when all things are fair; Alas! it soldom winnerh The goal, untouched by care Hope's larry pinnace, freighted With dreams of luture joy, Hastes to the quicksands fated I's promise to destroy.

Wrecks of the dreams so cherished, Are floating darkly by, Like the gallant ships that perished, When the winds and waves were high; The flowers that plooned around it, The tount new idly choke. And the sun bright hopes that bound it Are like parted cables broke,

But soon, O flowing river! Though wild thy course may be, Thou it merge thy waves forever In the deep, unbounded sea; And to the heart is given A colm repose at last: Though surely it hash striven With the billow and the blast,

I was reading this song to a friend. the above, and containing of ACRES more or less. | well as a tongue not Scottish would let me, while an intelligent young person, below the rank that is called a lady, sat at work in the room. She smiled as I concluded, and said, half to herself, "Singing that song got my sister a husband ." "Is she so fine a singer, inquired my friend. "No, ma'am, not a fine singer at all; only somehow every body likes to hear her, because she seems to feel the words she sings, and so makes other people feel them. But it was in her choosing that song, that won William's leve. He said that a woman who put so much heart into the description of a wife's joy at getting her husband home again, would be sure to make a good wife herself. And so she does. There never was a happier couple. It has been a lucky song for them I'm sure." Now it seems to me that this true story is worth all the criticisms in the world, both on this particular ballad and on the manner of singing ballads in general. Let the poet and his songstress only put heart into them, and the lady, at least, sees her reward. - Miss Mitford.

> A Wife.—With the true wife a husband's faults should be sacred. A woman forgets what is due to herself when she condescends to that refuge of weakness, a female confidant. A wife's bosom should be the tomb of her husband's failings, and his character far more valuable in her estimation than his

A Remarkable Meeting .- At the residence of John Bacon, Esq., Alba Court, there was a gathering together of an unbroken band of ten sisters, whose uniform ages ing, belonging to the same family, whose ages swell the number to 832. Two other brothers, one at an early, the other at an

They are the family of the late Thomas Gross, of Wellfleet, Mass., and were each born and bred among the sand-hills of Cape Cod, and are, as may be easily imagined; They belonged to the old Puritanical stock, of Christian Sisters, each having joined the Methodist Church, in their earlier years, and still continuing steadfast in the faith of their fathers. The mother of this truly remarkable family, the writer of these lines, scarcely out of his teens, distinctly rememthough nearly ninety years of age. She died in 1835. Where is the parallel to the above ?-Boston Traveller, 29th.

Southern Manufactures .- There are in full operation at Columbus, Georgia, four Cotton Mills, with a capital of $360,000: and employing 560 hands. In these mills are 14,636 spindles and nearly 400 looms.— Another cotten mill has nearly been completed, intended to be worked by slaves, and which is said to be much larger than either of the other four ; but it it has not yet gone into operation. There are also in Columbus and its immediate vicinity, a cotton gin manufactory which turns out 1200 gins annually, a very extensive flouring mill, and two foundries and machine shops.

The editor of the Clinton, (La.) Floridian, has an interesting sketch of the Woodville, Miss., Cotton Factory, which is said to be turning out 38,000 yards of cotton cloth per vicek. Four thousand spindles are constantly employed. The capital invested $75,000; profits about fifty per cent, and the number of operatives is generally one hundred and twenty five, at a cost of $4.25

What we all Know.

Men can talk and talk forever on abstract emith's schoolmaster, who 'e'en though vanvery large class, especially when their pride has been aroused by controversy, or their pockets touched by what they fancy their own interest. We desire, therefore, for to the amount of 24,950 tons. this once to ask all Americans to forget their rival theories and consider intently a few indisputable facts which stand out broadly and prominently on the chart of our National History through the last ten years. Some things we may not clearly apprehend, but these things we do know.

1. We know that, ten years ago, our country was just arriving at the consummation of an aunual reduction of our Tariff during the nine years preceding, from the standard of Protection to that of Free Trade, with duties for Revenue only, none of which thenceforth to exceed twenty per cent.

2. We know that the general industry of the Country was by no means so prosperous toward the end of this Compromise decade as it was at the beginning; that Manufactures were stationary, retrograde or paralyzed; that Agriculture was poorly rewarded and declining also; and that even the Importations had so fallen off, by reason of the decline of our ability to buy, that the Revenue Turiff was affording only Twelve to Fifteen millions of Revenue per annum, or hardly half enough for the legitimate wants of the Government.

3. We know that the Government was compelled, in a time of profound peace, and with less than One Million Dollars of interest to pay yearly, to resort to extensive borrowing to meet its expenditures.

4. We know that, though our entire National Debt was less than Ten Millions and our Annual Expenditure not Twenty-five Millions, our Agent sent to Europe to negotiate a Loan of Twelve Millions was unable to obtain a bid for a dollar of U. S. Six ill-concealed derision.

5. We know that the Tariff of 1842 was enacted when the Industry, Finances and Credit of the United States were in the condition above set forth.

6. We know that under that Tariff, Industry. Commerce and Credit experienced a sudden and almost magical improvement; that Labor throughout the country, found new employment, better wages and better prospects; that our annual product of Cloth. Iron, Coal and of Wares and Fabrics generally, was rapidly extended—that thousands were enabled to earn $12 to $30 per week, in making Iron, building Factories or Furnaces, constructing Machinery, &c., who, only two years before, would have been they could have found any thing to do; and that even Foreign Commerce signally felt the general improvement, by reason of the increased ability of our consumers to buy, while our Internal Trade was enormously and universally extended.

7. We know that under this Protective Tariff, so bitterly stigmatized as anti-Revenue and anti-Commercial, our Revenue from Imports rapidly rose from Twelve Millions to Thirty Millions per annum, putting an end to the necessity for berrowing, and enabling our Government to begin paymg; while our Stocks, which had just before been refused at par by every banker in Europe, were now in eager demand there at a premium of ten or twelve per cent.

sion of 1846 witnessed, another reversal of our National Policy, whereby a qualified Free Trade ascendancy was re-established. This act took effect at the close of 1840, but various influences, including the Railroad mania in Great Britain, the short crop throughout Europe, the Irish Famine of 1847, and the strong tenacity of life in our young and vigorous Manufacturing establishments, prevented its consequences being utterly realized for a considerable time.

9. We know that the large prices realized for our Grain exported in the Famine year, the high price of Cotton through the last two years, the discovery of Gold in California and its enormous yield up to this time, have prevented or deferred the crash which the heavy excess of our Imports over law, after an elaborate trial, to belong to

10. We know that our Harvests have been bountiful; our Exports large; the British Corn-Laws long since repealed; a considerable influx of Specie caused by the gigantic current of Immigration; while our people have been as industrious as the polmey of the Government permitted, and our Commerce extensive, prosperous and undisturbed through the last four years.

-Why, then, Fellow Citizens! does Specie flow away from us in Millions ?-Why are our forge fires put out, our furnaces closed, many factories silent or for sale by auction, our laborers roaming from State to State, in quest of work-whole villages
